

Splice Cast Ltd

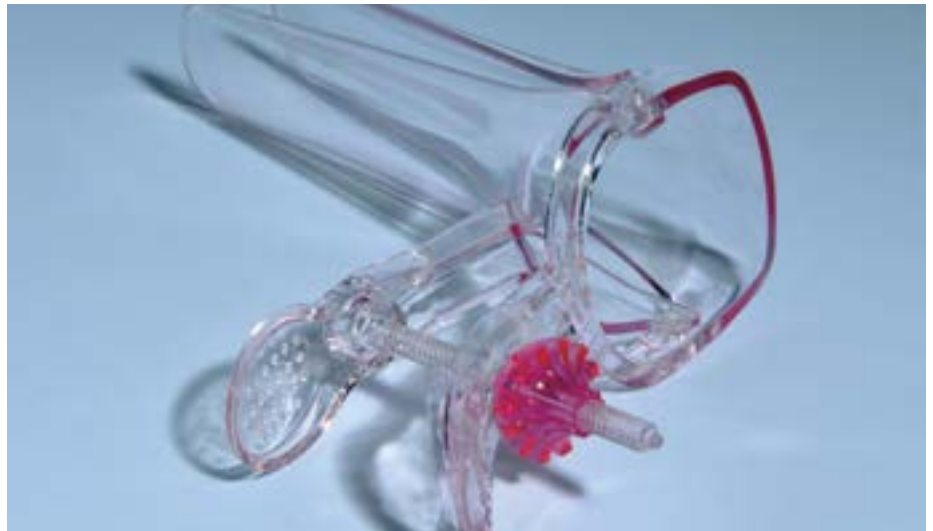

Leading designer and producer of plastic injection moulding, Splice Cast Ltd, has expanded its product offering and opened up new markets with help from Welsh Government funding.

Splice Cast Ltd in Powys designs and manufactures plastic injection moulded products with a focus on the medical device industry, offering its customers a complete service from product development and tooling to high quality manufacturing and production.

Established in 2000, Splice Cast Ltd combines 28 years of experience and insight into precision plastic injection moulding with modern and reliable injection machinery in its facility in Newtown. Recent growth highlighted an opportunity to increase its product offering and gain access to a larger market share of the medical consumables industry.

Extensive market research has led to the successful development of a complete range of a unique flexible speculum used in medical examinations, including cervical cancer screening.

In support of this development, successive tranches of funding from the Welsh Government's Business Innovation Programme has enabled Splice Cast Ltd to expand and rapidly bring to market a complete product line through providing access to industry and IP advice, support and marketing of the products. As a result, Splice Cast Ltd is gaining commercial interest from several international medical consumable companies through the offer of its own registered range of medical devices, Ultraspec®.

Duncan Morren Splice Cast Ltd's managing director, comments: "Successful research and development brings significant rewards, which in this case has been achieved in part through funding from the Welsh Government that has helped us bring our products to market faster. In turn, expanding our range has opened up more doors for us and we are already realising the benefits. The company has doubled in size since 2010, we hope that with the new product range we can continue to grow as a business."
