

New Centre to boost health innovation within Wales

An exciting new Centre to boost health innovation within Wales has been established. The Small Business Research Initiative (SBRI) Centre of Excellence is being hosted by Betsi Cadwaladr University Health Board and funded by the Welsh Government.

The newly designed service aims to work with public sector organisations to improve health and wellbeing to benefit all within Wales.

The Centre will assist in helping you to identify unmet needs and agreeing your top priorities in health challenge areas. They can help you to obtain funding and support you to write a successful challenge. With its experience in Healthcare, the Centre will also secure funding for priority areas and run challenge competitions. They will provide all of the help, support, training and guidance that you will need throughout this exciting and innovative process. Find out more:
